MANAGING YOURSELF UNDER PRESSURE

Typically qualities like quiet, shy and stuttering do not create the perfect backbone to become one of Canada's premiere comedians, magicians, speakers and television hosts. As a child David Merry had lots of friends, was confident around them but like other kids was reserved, quiet and shy when taken out of his natural surroundings. After seeing Bob Hope on TV at the age of 10 and then being introduced to magic by a friend at 12, he set his sights on entering the world of entertainment. In a fascinating and hilarious journey he relates how his love of performing outweighed his limitations, anxieties and what he did to overcome stage fright, panic attacks and stuttering to excel in a range of occupations most people wouldn't even consider.
